Easterners Predict Liberal
Victory in Event of Dominion Election.

MANITOBA JOLT MAKES APPEAL NOT PROBABLE

Edmonton. Standing Depression
Better Than Any Other Western City.

The announcement of the autumn election of the west to be taken by the forces of the liberal and conservative parties, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Robert Borden, coming on top of the Ontario and Manitoba elections, has set the whole dominion talking politics once more, especially as it is recognized that the western trip is practically the beginning of the next dominion campaign.

A party of five easterners who were at the royal George hotel last night was not exempt from this talk, particularly as two of the five were liberal members of the Ontario legislature, and one a liberal senator. They were Senator Vallentyne, Ritz, of New Hamburg, Ont.; W. Proudfoot, M.C.A. for Centre Huron; W. H. Ferguson, M.A. for East Kent; T. A. Neely, the well-known realty broker of Montreal and Toronto; and C. J. Black, manager of the Toronto branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

"I believe," said Senator Ritz, "that the conservatives intended, if things had panned out the way they expected, to pull off a dominion election this fall. The plan was to have the Ontario and Manitoba provincial elections during the summer, and they relied on their supposed superior organization to give them overwhelming majorities in both provinces."

Manitoba Changes Plans.
"Manitoba, however, by no means resulted as they thought. In fact, the liberals really won. It was a terrible jolt and I think it changed their plans entirely, so that there will be no election this year. I would not be surprised if Borden decides, after his western trip, to postpone it as long as he can, to help him in the fall. I may figure that the hard times, which he knows would beat him now, will be over then."

"In my opinion the sooner will the election be held, the sooner will the liberals be back in power. The nationalists are dead in Quebec and the province will be sold for Laurier, while in Ontario we will get at least twice as many votes as we have now. From what I have seen so far on my trip there will be nothing to it in the west, but even in Manitoba the liberals will not be any other result than a liberal victory in the dominion."

Had there been hard times in 1911 the territory agreement would have been carried Laurier back to power, but many voted to let well enough alone. They now see their mistake and they will vote next time the way their reason commands."

Mr. Proudfoot, who was a conspicuous figure in the last Ontario house and was elected on July 25, said that if a dominion election were held at present he would not be surprised to see the liberals split even in Ontario, which would give them 42 seats under the new redistribution. Mr. Ferguson, who declared his majority in East Kent, declared that the liberals would get at least twice as many as they have now.

"I know two cattle buyers," said Mr. Proudfoot, "who were preaching at last election about the dire prospects of the west. They would have been the first to buy cattle over the boundary at a large profit."

Mr. Neely and Mr. Neely are not talking politics, but say that Edmonton is better than any other city west of the great lakes. Mr. Neely is a cousin of the late Mr. Neely, M.P. of Humboldt, who was the largest liberal member in the dominion at last election. This is the fifteenth trip to the west of Senator Ritz, who left for Calgary last night, but it has been five years since he visited Edmonton, and last night he commended on the marvelous changes which have taken place here in that time.

Mr. Ferguson is going to see the berth country before he goes back east. He has a brother living at Gravelton, twenty years ago he was acquainted with J. K. Campbell, who was originally from the county of Kent.

MUSICAL PROGRAM TAKES THE PLACE OF MEDICAL TALKS

Gathering at East End Park to Listen to Child Discussion is Disappointed.

APOLOGY OFFERED FOR ABSENCE OF DOCTORS

Katherine W. Jackson the Best
Baby Girl and Frederick
Spencer the Best Boy

Parents to the number of several hundred, who went to the East End park yesterday afternoon expecting to listen to suggestions and recommendations by prominent physicians concerning the care of children, were disappointed to learn upon arriving there that the medical men who had been scheduled to speak had found it impossible to be present. The entire program was abandoned. The gathering was well attended, however, by an excellent musical program by the Strathcona band.

C. W. Edmond, representing the Edmonton Dairy company, under the direction of which the "better babies contest" was held, offered apology for the disappointment, stating that he was late Saturday afternoon when Dr. A. Allen Nichols, who was in charge of the arrangements, notified him that the physicians who had promised to speak had informed him that they would be unable to attend.

Mr. Edmond explained the purpose of the contest recently held, stating that it was purely educational, and that much good had been derived from it by parents who had been brought to a realization of certain defects in their children and were thus enabled to remedy them. He said that from a hygienic standpoint a great deal had been accomplished, and while the awards of the contest might not meet with the complete approval of parents who had entered their children, defects had been pointed out which would result in physical development which would be of inestimable benefit in the future.

The baby receiving the highest award, and by reason thereof being declared to be the best baby in Edmonton, was Katherine Wilhelmina Jackson, two years of age, the daughter of G. H. Jackson, superintendent of the headquarters of the Edmonton school board. She will receive a bronze medal and a diploma.

Four hundred babies were entered in the contest and 250 of these were actually examined by the board. Entries were divided in five classes according to age. The first prize was awarded to Frederick Earle Spencer, of Canmore, Alta., securing 95.5 points out of a possible 100, and was entered in the 20 to 36 months class. In the 3 to 24 months class, Howard P. Blackford, 226 Gallagher street, received the first prize with 97.5 points. Katherine Wilhelmina Jackson, 925 Elizabeth street, took the first prize in the 12 to 18 months class with 96.5 points, and Alberta Margaret, 1454 Sixty-third street, took the first prize in the 6 to 12 months class with a score of 94.7 points.

The Edmonton Dairy company, which organized the contest, is indebted to Dr. Nichols and other physicians of the city who spent many hours of their time in examining the babies, and to the members of the hospital board, Dr. H. H. Gilman, Dr. H. H. Gilman, and the members of the nursing staff. The prizes, which in every instance were medals, were provided for by a fund which was started by a contribution of $200 by the Edmonton Dairy company.

SERVIA THROWS DOWN THE DEFENSE AND WANTS WAR

Waits Until the Last Moment and When Austria-Hungary Ultimatum Expires Serbian Minister Presumptively King Peter Hurries to Belgrade—Chief Military Adviser in Conference.

Vienna, July 27.—Diplomatic relations between Austria-Hungary and Serbia were formally broken off last night. War is regarded by the public as almost a certainty.

Martial law has been declared throughout the Austro-Hungarian empire.

The Serbian minister and his staff left Vienna tonight. A military conference has been established in the telegraph office here.

The Serbian government waited until the last moment left it by the terms of the note and only ten minutes before the hour of six, when the Austria-Hungarian ultimatum expired did the Serbian premier call at the legation and present his government's reply to the Austrian minister, Baron Giesl von Gieslingen.

No details of the tenor of the reply have been revealed here but the statement was made that it was "unsatisfactory."

Immediately upon receiving the note, the Austrian minister informed the foreign office and diplomatic relations were broken off. Half an hour later the minister and his staff, with their families, had boarded a train for Serbian territory. The train was in readiness to depart, as an unfavorable reply to the Austrian demands had been expected.

According to newspaper messages received here the mobilization of the Serbian army was ordered for 3 o'clock in the afternoon. King Peter, who had hurriedly returned to Belgrade when the ultimatum was announced, left the capital this evening on a special train with the principal officers of the government. In the realization that the Austrians could capture Belgrade without difficulty, the temporary seat of the government was made known to the public by extra editions of the evening papers and at a late hour tonight half the population seemed to be on the streets. They fought eagerly for the papers and proclamations were formed which marched through all the thoroughfares singing national hymns and cheering for Emperor Francis Joseph, Emperor William, and the "army." Rivers were throughout the country similar demonstrations are being held.

Count Von Berchtold, the Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs, visited Belgrade early today and had a long conference with the emperor. Later he conferred with the minister of war, General Kraljic, and the emperor's chief military adviser General Baron Hofman von Auenburg, and the minister of finance.

Count Von Berchtold had another audience at 1 o'clock with the emperor to whom he communicated the Serbian note.

Some Fine Horses.

A. D. McCormick, Custer, Alberta, has some fine Clydesdales, which he will exhibit at the coming fair. Joseph H. Laycock, Okotoks, will show his fine stock of Clydesdales, and also a number of Holstein cattle.

James Bowman, of Guelph, Ont., in bringing his Aberdeen Angus cattle and Suffolk sows to compete with western breeders. B. A. Holgate, Edmonton, will exhibit his herd of Holstein cattle.

Guelph is also represented by the fine herd of Galloways, owned by D. McEae. A. B. Cook, Townsend, Montana, is satisfied that his Hereford cattle can make good anywhere, and is bringing his to the coming fair. James E. Curry's Ayrshire cattle are the pride of Vermilion, and Mr. Curry is not afraid to show in comparison with the best in Canada.

Elliot Bros. Inc., specialists in Red Poll cattle, E. N. Shepherd, Borden, Alta., has entered his fine Jersey.

Angora Goat Farming.
Angora goat farming is still in its experimental stages so far as Alberta is concerned, and any who have considered branching out in this line or even those who have not, should not fail to see for themselves the measure of success which has attended the efforts of J. J. Bell, of Calgary, Alta. In addition to his herd of Aberdeen Angus cattle, Mr. Bell will bring a number of Angora goats to the exhibition.

John J. Ross, West Salisbury, will exhibit Yorkshire swine; R. B. Ross, Millet, Alta., will bring a good show of swine; J. J. Bell, of Calgary, Alta., will exhibit a number of swine; J. J. Bell, of Horse Hills, Alberta, that pioneer exhibitor who has stood by the Edmonton exhibition through rain and shine for 22 years, is on hand this year with something over 100 swine. Live stock, grain, grapes and other products, comprising Mr. Bell's exhibit. Mrs. Bell's reputation as a bettermaker is long and firmly established, and the woman who can take the prize from Mrs. Bell's butter is a credit to the community in which she lives.

There are only a few of many exhibitors whose names are being recalled so rapidly as the exhibition staff can trace the letters. To enumerate all would make a list too long. Needless to say the exhibits will be out of all comparison with those of other years, showing that the Edmonton exhibition is still growing.

LAST OFFICIAL VISIT TO CITY AS VICE-REGENT

Mingled Feelings of Pleasure and Regret Voiced in Expression of Citizens of Edmonton and Province Are Proof of Affection in Hearts of Canadian People—Brief Ceremony at Parliament Buildings This Morning After Which Royal Party Tours City—Public Reception at Government House This Afternoon and Motor Trips Into Surrounding Country.

For the second time Edmonton was today favored with a visit from His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught and Her Royal Highness Princess Patricia. It is almost two years since the last visit of their royal highnesses and on this occasion they were received with mingled feelings of pleasure and regret—pleasure in once more being able to bid them welcome and regret that this will be their last official visit before they leave the Dominion. His Royal Highness' term of office as Governor General of the Dominion being shortly to expire.

The unmitigated loyalty and devotion with which the people of Edmonton and Alberta welcomed Their Royal Highnesses today was an indication of the success which has attended the term of office of His Royal Highness and measure of affection that he and his Consort and Princess Patricia have found in the hearts of the Canadian people as a whole.

The royal train arrived in the city shortly after 8 o'clock this morning over the Grand Trunk Pacific and at 9:45 a guard of honor, consisting of men of the 101st regiment drew up at the depot. His Royal Highness promptly appeared on the scene and with the eye of an old soldier looked over the men and returned their salute. Lieut. Governor Bulley, Premier the Hon. A. L. Sifton, His Worship Mayor McNamara, attended to extend a welcome to the royal party and shortly after 10 o'clock all the party proceeded by way of First street, Jasper avenue and Seventh street to the Parliament buildings. Here members of the cabinet and legislature and aldermen of the city were assembled on the steps in front of the building. The royal party soon alighted and took up a position in the centre of the steps, while the guard of honor lined up on the open space in front of the buildings.

The provincial and civic addresses were presented to His Royal Highness by Premier Sifton and Mayor McNamara respectively. In a brief speech, couched in well-chosen terms, His Royal Highness responded, thanking the people of the city and province for their welcome and expressing the pleasure felt by himself and Their Royal Highnesses the Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia at the cordial welcome extended. His Royal Highness also spoke appreciatively of the people of Alberta and the wonderful development of the city and province.

The provincial address was read by Premier Sifton and was as follows:

"Field Marshal His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and of Strathorn, Earl of Sussex (in the peerage of the United Kingdom), Prince of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Duke of Saxony, Prince of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, K.G., K.C., K.P., P.C., G.M.B., G.C.S.T., G.C.M.G., G.C.L.E., G.C.V.O., Personal A.D.C., to His Majesty the King, Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief of the Dominion of Canada. May it please Your Royal Highness: "It is with deep earnestness and profound pleasure that I welcome your Royal Highness on behalf of the people of Alberta and of the province of Alberta."

"It was with deep sorrow that the people of Alberta learned of the sudden illness of Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught in the month following her visit to our province. Her restoration to health and strength has been the signal for sincere satisfaction and joy to the people of Alberta and of the province. Your second visit to this province. TOOK BAND MUSIC TO KANSAS TO TOOT AGAINST SLAVERY

Forest Savage of Boston Played "The Kansas Emigrant."

ARRANGED "WHEN JOHNNY COMES MARCHING HOME"

Took Part in Stirring Events Before and During the Civil War.

Topsie, Kan., July 27.—It may be a little difficult to think of Kansas as ever having been without a band, but until 1856, outside of the army band at Lawrence, there was not a concert in the state.

Forest Savage, who lives at Lawrence, Kan., was the first band leader in Kansas. He brought his band with him from Boston—a musical aggregation of four members—two cornets, a flute and a bugle.

They came out with the first company of the New England Emigrant company in 1856. Governor Robinson—the first governor of Kansas—had come first to scout around, and upon his report when he went back to New England the little company of 125 people started to pioneer in the new state.

Forest Savage, then a young man of twenty-two years, gathered his band about him at that company, stood in the Boston station, and began to play the "Kansas Emigrant," which Whittier, a friend of his family, had just written. He played it to the tune of "Add Lane Syne," and as the first strains played the air, the entire company of emigrants, and their friends who had come to see them start for the new west, joined in the song.

The conductor, he led his train for the last few lines of the song, and Forest Savage and his band were the last to enter the cars, still playing the "Kansas Emigrant."

They camped where the old union depot now stands in Kansas City when they left the last that brought them up from St. Louis. And the prospector from Missouri, who had heard of their coming, gathered about them in curiosity to see the New England men who did not believe in slavery. There was a wandering band of Delaware Indians, who camped next to them and listened to their music with increasing interest.

"Our little band used to climb to the top of the bluffs near the spring where we camped," said Mr. Savage, who is now in his eighty-seventh year, "and there we would play an hour or two every night—just the old songs."

"One night a woman who had listened to us, eagerly turned to her husband with tears in her eyes and said: 'I don't believe these men can be so bad as they say when they play such music as this.'"

The little Kansas band was an important factor in all the political rallies of the state. It played at the inauguration and at the campaign meetings. Once when General Seward was in Lawrence he was so pleased with the music that he presented the band with expensive cigars. Mr. Savage had never smoked in his life, but he took three puffs of his cigar in honor of the occasion.

They played when General Grant was there and when Louis Agassiz was there and when Horace Greeley paid Lawrence a visit. They were a part of the first state militia and played a prominent part in the famous Price's raid that did not materialize.

"That was when Price was moving north from Arkansas to replenish his stores, and Colonel Williamson was sent by Curtis to move on Westport and stop his advance."

For two weeks the little company camped at Shawnee Free State Mission awaiting further orders. All day Sunday, they heard shots at Westport, but late Sunday evening came orders to go back to Lawrence.

"We know our folks at home were as anxious about us as we were about them," said Mr. Savage. "We had left two companies there to guard the band."

"When orders came to return to Lawrence I wanted to have some music appropriate to the occasion, and I scoured through a little old file book I had found something to arrange while the band waited for rehearsal. I found a piece that I had never seen played in Kansas to my knowledge and I arranged it in five parts for the band."

"We rehearsed it then and there and the next day when we marched triumphantly over the bridge to Lawrence with everybody out to meet us, the band was swinging along with the new tune, 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home.'"

"The soldiers were shouting it and we were playing it with all our might. The two companies left to guard the town broke ranks and rushed out to meet us like a bunch of boys hugging us in their delight at seeing us safe."

"The women and children were as frenzied with delight, and we could hardly march into the street in proper formation, so enthusiastic was their welcome. The new tune took like wildfire and we always played it at our meetings after that."

Jail Breaker Is Caught.

Medicine Hat, July 27.—John Spiller, who broke jail at Leeds, S.D., some time ago, was apprehended here yesterday by the local police. Spiller had been ordered to pay $100 by the United States court to a woman whom he had wronged, and in default of payment, had been committed to jail.

Alberta province has an area of 252,410 square miles. Alberta last year spent $7,025,324 for educational purposes.

JOKER COSTS CAFE HELP THEIR WHISKERS

New York, July 27.—John T. Fay has come home. If you live in Harlem you know him. He keeps an oyster and chop house in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues and up to recently had about thirty waiters and kitchen helpers in his place. But when the proprietor entered and looked about he knew something terrible had struck the place.

"John!" he called. "Jakel Jim!" They were his oldest men. Some had been in his service for twenty years and naturally the proprietor wished to give them a cheery greeting on his home coming. Three men stood before him. He didn't know them. He took several looks, turned to his books for a few moments and once again called the men.

"Here we are!" they answered in chorus.

Mr. Fay took a good look. "What th—?" He looked hard at the men; then at his other waiters. It was apparent that something revolutionary had happened. The men led Mr. Fay back to the kitchen. There, in a conspicuous place, was a sign reading:

"No one will be allowed to wear a mustache here in the summer."

"No one will be allowed to wear a mustache here in the summer," said Mr. Fay, who displayed a black mustache. But "Jakel" Schoen and "Jimmy" Robinson, who have provided oysters and "Bibb" Fuss, the head waiter, cannot be expected to believe a word of it. Mr. Fay is almost afraid now to come to his restaurant for fear some one in revenge will kidnap him and put him in the same class as his bare-faced staff.

Paralyzed by Blow.

Winnipeg, July 27.—William McDowell is lying in the General hospital in an unconscious condition, with the right side of his body paralyzed, result of a blow on the head. William Boyle is held in custody as an important witness. The only mark found on McDowell is a bruise behind the left ear. His condition is considered serious.

GOAT RIDES MAN OUT WINDOW AT INITIATION

Lexington, Ky., July 27.—At an Owl's initiation at the Lexington opera house, a goat plunged out of a third-story window, carrying a candidate on its back. George O'Leary was the candidate. Luckily for both, the goat landed on a fire escape and neither was seriously hurt.

State Superintendent Harris, of Louisiana, in a recent official letter commends the Natchitoches parish school board for inviting the country boys from all sections of the parish to assemble for a week to study agricultural questions and the direction of agricultural projects.

Cleveland is asked to provide automatic sprinkler system in all public schools.

CHINESE WIFE DOOMED TO BE AFFINITY'S SLAVE

Kenton, O., July 27.—Heartbroken and discouraged, facing a future of semi-slavery in the service of the man she loves and who has cast her aside for another woman, Mrs. Edith Huang, Chinese graduate of Ohio Northern University at Ada, has started on the return trip to her native land with her faithful husband, John Huang.

A few years ago Huang and his wife were converts at a Methodist mission in Poochow, China. A short time afterward they were persuaded by a missionary to come to America.

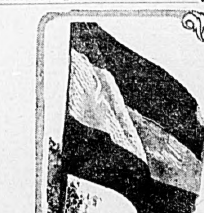

They decided to enter school to equip themselves for teaching in the Chinese government schools. The man entered the University of Pittsburgh, while his wife took up her work at the Ohio Northern University at Ada. She proved a brilliant student, and was graduated this year with the degree of bachelor of philosophy and bachelor of pedagogy.

The husband left the University of Pittsburgh and entered Columbia University, in New York city. He became infatuated with a woman in New York, left school and set up a curio shop.

According to Chinese custom, if the wife of a Chinaman speaks to another man, he may take another wife, while his first wife is compelled to act as his slave.

Huang came last Thursday to Ada where he attempted to learn whether his wife had spoken to others while there. Finding that such was the case, he announced his intention of returning with her to China where he would marry affinity.

Afraid to refuse him, his broken-hearted woman has begun her term of life bondage.

HOOT, MON; NO NIP IN SCOTLAND TILL 10 A.M.

Glasgow, July 27.—No longer can the Scot take his morning nip. A new law has gone into effect which forbids public houses to open their doors before 10 a.m. Thus a traditional custom of workmen in many industries is destroyed.

There is much complaining in certain quarters. But the more general opinion is that the new rule will improve the health of the workmen. In the ship yards, engineering works and docks the men begin their day at 4 o'clock and stop for breakfast either from 9 to 9.30 or 9.30 to 10. In this period the morning drink has been taken, often with injurious and demoralizing effects when put on an empty stomach.

As it is provided for the future that the opening of the public houses shall not take place until workmen are due back at their work, the drinking habit is likely to be considerably reformed.

The expectation is, however, that in some industries, notably in harbor transport work and in ship building, the men will adapt their breakfast hour to suit the new hours of the public houses. By putting their breakfast intervals back half an hour, it is pointed out, they will have time for a drink immediately before resuming work.

No decision on these lines has yet been taken, but both employers and trade union leaders recognize that such an alteration will become inevitable.

Clubs are affected by the new law, which practically forbids them to sell intoxicants between 3 a.m. and 10 p.m.

HOOT, MON; NO NIP IN SCOTLAND TILL 10 A.M.

Glasgow, July 27.—No longer can the Scot take his morning nip. A new law has gone into effect which forbids public houses to open their doors before 10 a.m. Thus a traditional custom of workmen in many industries is destroyed.

There is much complaining in certain quarters. But the more general opinion is that the new rule will improve the health of the workmen. In the ship yards, engineering works and docks the men begin their day at 4 o'clock and stop for breakfast either from 9 to 9.30 or 9.30 to 10. In this period the morning drink has been taken, often with injurious and demoralizing effects when put on an empty stomach.

As it is provided for the future that the opening of the public houses shall not take place until workmen are due back at their work, the drinking habit is likely to be considerably reformed.

The expectation is, however, that in some industries, notably in harbor transport work and in ship building, the men will adapt their breakfast hour to suit the new hours of the public houses. By putting their breakfast intervals back half an hour, it is pointed out, they will have time for a drink immediately before resuming work.

No decision on these lines has yet been taken, but both employers and trade union leaders recognize that such an alteration will become inevitable.

Clubs are affected by the new law, which practically forbids them to sell intoxicants between 3 a.m. and 10 p.m.

GOAT RIDES MAN OUT WINDOW AT INITIATION

Lexington, Ky., July 27.—At an Owl's initiation at the Lexington opera house, a goat plunged out of a third-story window, carrying a candidate on its back. George O'Leary was the candidate. Luckily for both, the goat landed on a fire escape and neither was seriously hurt.

BOY WALKS 100 MILES HOME FROM SCHOOL

Georgetown, Del., July 27.—Three days after he had been put in charge of officers of the Industrial School at Wilmington, Bernard McCurdy of Georgetown, walked back home in one day and night, without anything to eat or any rest. McCurdy is 14 years old. In a short time he saw his chance and, escaping, walked all that day and night, nearly 100 miles. When he arrived he was so tired he could hardly sit and his shoes were almost in tatters.

¶ These men are all sound energetic business men of this city, and their names connected with any enterprise is a guarantee of its success.
FUR FARMING is claiming the attention of the whole world today. Why?

¶ It is a fact that there are thirty millions of Dollars invested in this industry in Canada and no record can be found where the investor has ever lost a dollar either as a shareholder in a company or as a private ranch owner.

¶ Not only do investors see great profits in breeding fur bearing animals in captivity for their pelt value, but with Canadian, Russian and United States governments issuing reports on the industry and Britain becoming very much interested. When you consider the limited supply of animals in captivity, how long will it take to supply the demands of these countries with breeders? Note what the Montreal Trade Bulletin says regarding this:

¶ "Regarding the future of the industry on a breeding basis, it looks good for anywhere between ten and fifteen years, judging by the interest developing in all quarters."

¶ One thing you may be sure of, is the fact that prices for breeding animals will not be lower than they are at the present time for many years to come. When the industry gets down to a pelt basis, read the following facts regarding FUR FARMING:

THE FUR INDUSTRY

THE FUR INDUSTRY

Fur-farming is a new industry in Canada. Although the business of raising Silver Foxes in captivity is now well understood in Eastern Canada, and more particularly in Prince Edward Island, it is as yet a comparatively new industry in Western Canada. Generally speaking the people of the West have not looked carefully into the business and some are sceptical of the great profits of the industry and doubtful as to its permanency. While the demand for animals for breeding purposes remains sufficiently active to take care of the total output, the profits to ranch owners will continue to be enormous. In this connection we quote from the well known journal "Canada" published in London under date of February 7th, 1914. Mr. Robinson Black says: "It was inevitable that the world's supply of furs should give rise to animal breeding as an industry. As Canada was the greatest offender in ridding forests and streams of fur-bearing animals, it is not surprising that the Dominion has taken most vigorous and practical steps to win back by artificial means the rich resources which primitive extravagance cast away. It is not impossible that in another hundred years the raising of animals for their fur will be as common as the raising of cattle for beef. One thing beyond dispute is that breeding foxes, skunks, mink and leaver and other small animals in captivity can be successfully carried out with generous profits and the certainty of an upward market."

DEMAND AND SUPPLY

Stated in general terms, fur has become scarce because less is produced and more is used than ever before. The large volume of trade and the rapidly rising prices of furs, together with the impossibility of any additions to the quantities captured by trappers and hunters has impressed on the whole world the immense possibilities in the domestic production of fur. There is no denying the fact that Black Silver Fox Fur is today the most fashionable and beautiful fur on the market—the genuine article being the most attractive to the world's nobility—and the dyed or imitation to those of ordinary circumstances. A number of furs are at present of the market, such as the Sea Otter, Seal, Russian Rabbit, and a great many other wild animals are becoming extinct, and those that are left are being captured by trappers and sportsmen and it looks very probable that in a few years the fur market will wholly depend on the furs derived from domestic production. That being the case and we all thoroughly understand that these are facts, have we not a great future ahead of us in the fur industry?

The growing use of the automobile and the more general habit of living out-of-doors have made furs almost a necessity. In America alone, the valuation of automobiles is now over 1,500 million dollars, and a proper equipment for the luxurious vehicles and their occupants necessitates the use of many millions of dollars worth of furs and leather. Better roads, more extensive travel, and cheaper automobiles are important factors in determining the growing demands for fur and pelts generally.

INCREASING PRICE OF FUR

The following extract from a book recently issued by the Conservation Commission of the Canadian Government shows how rapidly the price of furs is advancing. It summarizes the percentage increase in prices for the more valuable Canadian fur-bearing animals:

Kind of Skin	Percentage Increase in Prices
	1892-1901	1902-1911	1902-1911
over	over	over	over
Fox, Silver	155	15	806
Fox, Cross	10	300	125
Fox, Red	85	45	245
Fox, Blue	20	385	200
Martin, Pine	120	340	850
Skunk	470	15	180
Fisher or Pekan	430	450	450
Mink	60	340	800
Muskrat	20	210	210
Skunk	230	230	230
Lynx	25	130	200

"Thus it is seen that an increasing demand has elevated the price rapidly in the past decade, and it may be added that the increase in prices in furs during the past three years is greater than ever before." At the June sales, 1913, the London price of Silver Fox advanced 26 per cent, and January sales, 1914, advanced 16 per cent.

PROFITS

An fur-farming, as yet, is in its infancy in the Province of Alberta, an estimate of the profits a fur-farming Company should earn would be rather difficult to give, but in this connection we give the following extracts from the Charlotte-Town Guardian, of November, 1912:

The following Fox Companies have declared dividends to date:

Company	Authorized Capital	Dividend	Dividend %

FEAST READY WHEN GROOM BACKS OUT

New York, July 27.—With the promise of orange blossoms in the air, Miss Florence Howe, prominent in the social life of Pittsford, Pa., was awakened from a dream of happy marriage by a note written by Frederick McCabe of this city, in which she was told that he could not make her his wife.

Now Miss Howe wants $10,000 damages for alleged breach of promise of marriage. She caused the arrest of Mr. McCabe in his office, on the ground that he was about to leave this country. He was released on bail. Miss Howe is a sister of William D. Howe, member of the Yale club. Mrs. Frederick C. Peck of White Plains is her sister. The Howe family is prominent in Pittsford. McCabe formerly was employed in the office of an insurance company in Liverpool. He is 22 years old and Miss Howe is said to be a trifle older. Miss Howe asserts that Mr. McCabe proposed marriage to her on Sept. 12, 1913, and after she had accepted him, he asked her to keep their engagement a secret. She agreed, but about the first of the present year thought it should be announced, so the engagement was published in the newspapers of Pittsford, Pa., Whitehouse, Pa., and Stratton, on Jan. 3.

The wedding was arranged for May 21 last, Miss Howe says, in the home of her sister, Mrs. Peck, in White Plains. She expended $100 in preparing a trousseau, and on April 27 went to White Plains to prepare for the marriage. There she was met by Mr. McCabe, and she again saw him on April 30 at White Plains, where, she says, final arrangements for the wedding were discussed.

A dinner was arranged at the Peck home for May 7, at which Mr. McCabe promised to be present. It is asserted, and among other persons invited were the clerk of Westchester county, who was to issue the marriage license, and the clergyman who was to officiate. But on May 6, the night before the dinner, it is asserted, and only five days before the wedding, Miss Howe received the following letter:

"Dear Florence—I know you will feel hurt and surprised at receiving this letter, but I feel that under the circumstances it is all I can do. You may have noticed that I was not as warm toward you as I should have been, and you have probably put it down to my natural coldness and reserve. But it is really more than that. I don't really love you, and while I like and respect you immensely I don't think, in fact, I am quite sure, that I could not make you happy, and when there are such misgivings the only thing to be done is not to marry.

"I have fought this thing out with myself, and while I know I am playing a coward's part, I cannot help feeling that
